Physical or Chemical Change Card Sort

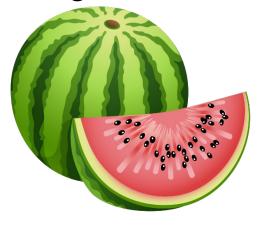

Change

Physical Chemical Change

When one substance combines with another and turns into a new substance

When a change affects the form of an object, but not its composition

Cutting a Watermelon

Wheels Rusting

Breaking a Pencil

Burning Wood

Melting Ice

Baking a Cake

Cutting Paper

Cutting Vegetables

Cooking Eggs

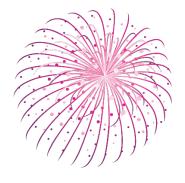

Lighting Match

Boiling Water

Fireworks

Beaker with Chemicals

Peeling a Banana

Answer Guide

Chemical

When one substance combines with another and turns into a new substance

Wheel rusting
Burning wood
Baking a cake
Beaker with chemicals
Fireworks
Cooking eggs
Lighting a match

Physical

When a change affects the form of an object, but not its composition

Cutting a watermelon
Breaking a pencil
Melting Ice
Cutting paper
Cutting vegetables
Boiling water
Peeling a banana

Physical & Chemical Change Card Sort

Learning Objective:

Students should be able identify the difference between physical and chemical changes in matter.

Target Learning Group:

ELL, ESE and struggling students may need to use class notes, graphic vocabulary and or text-books to help them apply what they have learned.

Directions:

Make copies for student use have students group the items into two categories go over the answer and discuss the why they grouped the items the way they did

Materials Needed:

Copies of handout

Terms of Use

Licensing Terms:

The purchaser of product agrees to limited use within the classroom. The product may be reproduced by the purchaser. This license is a single use non-transferable license and is not to be used by school districts, organizations, schools or additional teachers. Additional license can be purchased on Teachers Pay Teachers.

Copyright Terms:

No part of this product may be uploaded, shared or posted to any online site, unless for student use within a password protected website. This product may not be resold or recopied for profit.

Additional Information

Please follow us on Teachers Pay Teachers and consider providing feedback regarding this product. Additionally, you can also find us at the following:

If you have any questions or would like MJS Education to assist with customizing content for your school, organization or district you can contact us at Mjs.education.station@gmail.com.